The Russian military continues to storm Mariupol, using air bombs, heavy artillery, tanks, and the use of incendiary or phosphorus bombs. At Azovstal, 600 wounded remain in unsanitary conditions, without medicines, water and food. Last night, a large convoy of civilian cars moving from Mariupol to Zaporizhia was missed after a three-day delay.

Yesterday, May 14, the Russian military fired on a hospital in Severodonetsk, Luhansk region, injuring 9 people. A car with 10 evacuees came under fire today near Severodonetsk. The only route for the evacuation of civilians and the delivery of humanitarian aid is under fire. All communications in the region have been destroyed: there is no electricity, water supply and mobile communication in the settlements. During the night, 11 artillery attacks were carried out in Severodonetsk, buildings were destroyed.

In the morning, the Russian occupiers launched a missile strike on a military facility in the Lviv region. Four missiles hit a military infrastructure facility in the Yavoriv district, near the border with Poland, completely destroying the facility.
